

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe rules and obligations through a wider range of language and expressions in both work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Can you share any funny stories from your childhood? What are they?
- Have you and your friends ever gotten in trouble? What did you do?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about rules, regulations, crime and punishment.
- I can talk about what is supposed to happen.
- I can talk about things I had done or things that had happened.

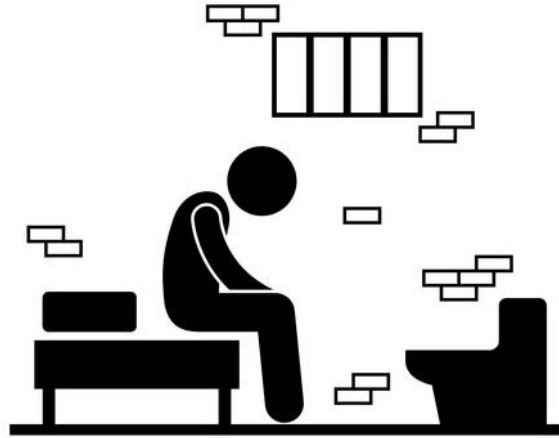

Let's Explore!

Let's read a story about some friends who go to jail. What happened?

* "Jail" is a place where suspects are temporarily held. Prison is a more permanent punishment.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

A Night in Jail

I remember the first time I was sent to jail.

It happened on a ski vacation in the mountains with some friends. My uncle's cabin was located not far from the ski hill, and we were allowed to use it for the weekend. After we had unpacked, we went to the village nearby. We got tired and headed back to the cabin.

"Who has the key?" I asked Sandra.

"I don't have it," she said. "Maybe David does."

"I don't have it either," David said.

"Uh oh," I thought. "Where is the extra key kept?" We had mistakenly locked ourselves out! David went around the back of the cabin. "The key could be hidden somewhere. Let's look," he said.

The neighbors were watching out for suspicious occurrences from the windows. "Maybe we should try to break in," David said. Then, David tried to open the back door with a shovel. He wasn't very successful.

"Maybe we should break one of the windows and then it can be replaced before we leave," I said.

In the meantime, the neighbors had already called the police. When the police car drove up to the house, they caught us breaking and entering. We tried to explain. I told them I was the niece and that we had locked the key inside. They didn't believe us. After a night spent in a holding cell, we managed to get in touch with my uncle. Next time we won't forget the key!

Let's Practice!

What happened to Sandra and her friends?

Instructions: Classify the following expressions into the right categories.

1. After we had spent the night in a holding cell, we managed to get in touch with my uncle.
2. I told them I was the niece and that we had locked the key inside.
3. In the meantime, the neighbors had already called the police.
4. My uncle told us he had hidden a key outside.
5. My uncle is going to hide a key outside.
6. After we had unpacked, we went to the village nearby.
7. If the neighbors call the police, we will have to explain why we are here.
8. We want to unpack and go into the village nearby.

Finished

Not finished

Let's Practice!

Rob talks about what is supposed to happen in his neighborhood.

Instructions: Read the text below and circle the incorrect words.

People are supposed to watch out crime in their neighborhood. They are supposed to report suspected persons even if they mistake identify them. The police are supposed to investigate ocurences like break and entering.

Extension Activity

Write a story about a person who was mistakenly sent to jail.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Write a funny story about someone who was mistakenly sent to jail.
- Be creative! It doesn't have to be true.
- Exchange your story with a partner and correct any errors you find in your partner's writing.
- Read your story aloud to your partner or a group.
- Which story is the funniest?

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I talk about rules, regulations, crime and punishment.

☐ ☐

I talk about what is supposed to happen.

☐ ☐

I talk about things I had done or things that had happened.

☐ ☐

I write creative stories.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- mistakenly (adverb): by mistake; not intentionally
e.g. We had mistakenly locked ourselves out!
- holding cell (noun): a small room where people wait to have their trial e.g. After a night spent in a holding cell, we managed to get in touch with my uncle.
- to watch out for (verb): to look for e.g. The neighbors were watching out for strange occurrences from their windows.
- suspicious (adjective): causing someone to believe that something is not right e.g. The neighbors were looking for suspicious activities from their windows.
- occurrence (noun): happening; incident; event e.g. The neighbors were watching out for suspicious occurrences from their windows.
- breaking and entering (noun): the act of illegally opening and entering someone's house e.g. When the police car drove up to the house, they caught us breaking and entering.

Learning Points

The Past Perfect Tense

You use the Past Perfect tense to identify and talk about an 'earlier past'.

When you are talking about a past event, you can refer to something that happened at an earlier time to that past event by using the Past Perfect tense.

The structure of the Past Perfect is:

Subject + had + past participle

When I arrived at the party, Vanessa had already gone home.

Which event happened first? Vanessa went home.

Which event happened later? I arrived at the party.

You use the Past Perfect tense (not Simple Past) when you want to talk about how long something had continued up to a past moment.

Examples:

- Before 2010, the number of home and car break-ins had nearly doubled in the metropolitan area.
- We had feared walking home at night.
- "I'm glad we had started a neighborhood watch program as early as we did."

Simple Past Passive, Simple Passive and Modal Verbs in the Passive Voice

You use an active structure when you want the 'doer' of the action to be the subject.

You use a passive structure when you want the 'receiver' of the action to be the subject.

You use modal verbs (can, could, may, might, have to) to add meaning to other verbs. They come before the dictionary form (Infinitive without 'to') of the main verb.

Modal verbs can add meaning connected with certainty or obligation.

Active sentence = The prison staff (subject) locked prisoners (object) in their cells at night.

Passive sentence = Prisoners (subject) were locked in their cells at night (by the prison staff).

It is not necessary to mention the object in a passive sentence.

You make the passive form of a verb by using tenses of the verb to be followed by the past participle.

The Simple Past passive form is:

Learning Points

was/were + past participle

The building was built in 1993.

The Simple Present passive form is:

am/are/is + past participle

The key is kept under the rock.

You can add a modal verb before the verb to be.

Subject + modal + To be + past participle

For example:

The key could be hidden somewhere.

Here the sentence now has an additional meaning of possibility, thanks to the modal could.

Examples:

- I remember the first time I was sent to jail.
- My uncle's cabin was located not far from the ski hill, and we were allowed to use it for the weekend.
- "Maybe we should break one of the windows and then it can be replaced before we leave," I said.
- "Where is the extra key kept?"

